

High School in America: PROM

Written by Bill Tsuda

Good morning, UNAN! Today is Friday, June 7th, 2019.

June marks the end of the school year in America. Soon, high school seniors will graduate, but before they graduate, many high school students look forward to prom. Prom is a huge formal dance party for all the students. They spend a lot of time and money to look their best, with nice dresses and tuxedos, doing hair and makeup to look and feel like celebrities. They even rent limos! Prom is a very important event for high school students. Usually, students make “prom proposals,” much like wedding proposals, to ask each other to be their prom dates. They go to crazy lengths to make these proposals. Some students make posters, sing songs, and give gifts like flowers or candy or teddy bears, and then they ask the question: “Will you go to prom with me?” Prom is a big part of American culture. If UNAN had a prom, how would you propose to your prom date?
