

An illustration of two hands being washed under a running faucet. The faucet is grey and has three blue lines representing water flowing down onto the hands. The hands are orange and are covered in white soap suds. There are also small white circles around the hands, suggesting bubbles or water droplets.