

Queens, New York

Written by Mr. Bill

Good morning, UNAN! Today is Friday, September 7th, 2018. My name is Bill Tsuda, and this is my first morning speech.

I come from New York City. New York City is huge, and it has over 8 million people. When you hear New York City, you think of tall buildings and skyscrapers, or places like Central Park and the Statue of Liberty. However, I am not from that part of New York. I am from a place called “Queens.”

Queens is a great place because it is so diverse. I have friends from many different countries. Queens has many delicious restaurants, too. If you want cheap and authentic food from around the world, you should go to Queens.

Queens is famous for being the home of the baseball team, the New York Mets. Their stadium is called Citi Field, and it is not far from my house. Even though they always lose, I am still a Mets fan.

If you ever go to New York, don't forget to stop by Queens, eat at a delicious restaurant, and watch a Mets game.
